Title: What art treasures might be hiding under TB-9 at UC Davis?

Publication Date: November 29, 2017

Summary: It's the late 1970s. A long-haired graduate student named Kelly Detweiler is studying painting and ceramics under the professor Robert Arneson and others, and spending countless hours at TB-9, the "temporary building" where the ceramic artists created new work.

On a warm summer evening, Detweiler, Arneson and others decide to play something of a prank — they put several ceramic pieces in an open trench near TB-9, thinking that someday their artwork will be discovered as a sort of time capsule.

After finishing up his master's at UCD, Detweiler landed his first teaching job at American River College in Sacramento, then joined the faculty at Santa Clara University, where he has taught for many years.

Title: The Alpha and Omega Choral Performance

Publication Date: November 29, 2017

Summary: Do you remember the first time you heard "The Hallelujah Chorus"?

The soaring oratorio, familiar and well-loved, is a cornerstone of Western classical music.

The American River College Orchestra and the Folsom Lake Choir will present selections from Handel's Messiah, as well as selections from Mozart's Requiem Mass.
